Hi I am trying to create an app that specifically does one thing (I am the developer), and doesn't have any flaws. If I put an API level of 16 for example, I want it to work on all versions of Android running 4.4, so if the user has an Android running 5.0, they won't have issues. But of course that wont' prevent bugs. If I get an exception for example, how can I tell in the log whether that is a device with API level 22 or 23 or some other version? A: I am not sure if there is any way to ask the device directly, maybe you could have an internal list of phones and assign the correct API level based on that? Otherwise, you can compare the Android version name with the API version you specified: String androidVersion = Build.VERSION.RELEASE; String apiVersion = Build.VERSION.SDK_INT; if (androidVersion.contains("Android") && apiVersion.contains("KITKAT")){ // Do something } Q: What is the font "Hand-Druck
