New York man convicted in murder of family in Argentina 2 Min Read BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) - A New York man who helped plan the murder of a family was convicted in Argentina on Wednesday, marking one of the most gruesome anti-family killings of the past two decades. Marcos Gerald Zavala, 43, was convicted in the murders of Adriana and Mariano Talavera and their two children, Agustina, 20, and Sebastian, 4, in 1999 at their home in Argentina's northwest province of Salta. The family lived in a well-kept neighborhood in the city, the provincial capital, and showed no outward
