However, for some people in the Evangelical community, Vatican II along with the other four documents of Vatican II are viewed as central to the witness we make as Catholics to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The Church, our liturgy, moral teaching, in fact, all of our teaching as Catholics, were conceived anew and even a new sanctification of the secular world occurred. This new way of thinking was adopted by many in the Evangelical community (I would love to say them all, but that would be a lie. Nonetheless, here are some examples.) New Mass Reading from the Extraordinary Form of the Roman Rite (Thanksgiving and Feast of the Ascension: Extraordinary Form of the Roman Rite) (1970),Not restricted to only a liturgical congregation (that s a good idea), but to the whole local and international ecumenical movement,Permitting a wider understanding of the Roman Catholic faith,Obliging the priest to approach a direct personal, and emotional relationship with the lector (Father-reader) and allowing the congregation to be involved in the reading. Prior to Vatican II, this was usually a theoretical concept.And,Council on Christian Unity - a six-volume English language summary of documents of the Council in English.These two documents, specifically, forever effected the ecclesial form of Catholicism. The Church of Christ changed, but not the Church. This was the first time the Church claimed that she was a sanctified, body that truly represents the presence of Christ. Prior to this, the Church was a sacred thing, but still separate, not united. Pope John Paul II and the CDF have made it all very clear that the Catholic Church is the Bride of Christ, not just the Church of Christ, not just Catholic Christians, but Church in the world.
