make sure your computer is connected to the router, and start by going to the 'setup' menu and selecting 'wired' or 'wireless'. then select 'wired' and then 'wired network'. this will bring up a list of all the available network interfaces. now you have to know the ip address of the router. if you are using a router, chances are you have already set this up and this will have been done for you when you signed up to the router's account. if you are using a wireless connection (most computers use this), you can usually find out the ip address by looking in your control panel. on a mac, you can usually find this in the network preferences. on windows, you can go to the control panel and select 'network and internet' and then look in the 'connections' tab. snap downloader lets you copy all the torrents you select to a local directory on your computer. you can even copy a torrent from the browser to a local directory! once you have done this, you can then save it for future use. you can save it in a text file, or in a torrent file. you can also save it directly to your hard drive. you can also share it with other people and other sites. their website lists the current pricing for both the mobile apps and their server. for the server they offer a free tier that allows you to download up to 2 gigs of data a month. (every month that is not cancelled.) this free tier is currently limited to 1 day a week, and access to the server is limited to one device per person. the free tier accounts are automatically billed at the end of the month, but if you dont cancel by the end of the month, you will be billed at the full rate. they do, however, offer a 'pay as you go' plan that allows you to get a month of the free tier and then you just pay for what you download. but it appears as though most people who sign up for the free tier use it for one day a week, and then cancel it the following week to be able to pay for the rest. 5ec8ef588b
