A medical emergency team (MET) protocol has been in use for more than a decade at our community hospital. The present study examined compliance with MET policies and protocols. Compliance with MET policies and protocols. Compliance with MET policies and protocols. Compliance with team protocols was 91% in all patients, and that with patient policies was 89% overall. Compliance rates for individual policies (vital sign management, intravenous access, medication administration, chart documentation) were as follows: vital signs, 53%; medications, 93%; intravenous access, 61%; and documentation, 64%. The only differences between those who did and did not comply with a given MET policies in this study was high. Large urban community hospital should adopt such policies widely to promote safe and high-quality care.(a) Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an isolating wall structure with a roof of which an upper surface thereof may be made an absorber and receiver of solar rays, respectively, thereby efficiently absorbing solar rays and generating electric power. (b) Description of the Prior Art Heretofore, an isolating wall structure has been used to prevent solar radiation from entering an indoor space and damaging furniture, and to prevent outdoor bad weather 79a2804d6b
