These data are normally stored on databases, and these databases are normally managed by database management software. The database management software are normally called "SQL server management console", "SQL server management studio", or "SQL server express". Since businesses keep a lot of database data on their computers, there is a need to keep a database backup which can easily be retrieved at a later point of time if the need to do so arises. The databases backups can be stored and retrieved to a backup server. These backup servers could be a web server or a database server. The backup process could be automated by database management software, or these backups could also be done manually by the database administrator. There are many ways of creating database backups. In this article, I am going to explain the most popular method of creating database backups. Backup a database With
