It works by saving the webpages as files, so you can access them in any of your devices even if you don't have internet. This can be especially useful for those who frequent certain areas without internet, or people who like to use their laptops to browse the web while on the go. Offline Explorer uses a folder system, so you can organize your website downloads into groups or make them all under one folder. You can add your favorite websites in advance and select them while browsing, so that you can download them immediately when you find them. By default, the program sets a two-day download cache, and the function to restore pages can be activated even in offline mode. If you don't need to download everything at once, you can use the background setting to keep the connection open without clogging it.
