RULES.INI Extractor Version 1.0.0.5Q: EXCEL SUMIFS with multiple criteria to sum up to 0 I am in need of a way to sum up to 0 when a given cell is filled with a value. I have a formula like this: =SUMIFS(A3:A10,D3:D10,{"ATR10*","UTR10","MRR10"}) I want this to sum up to 0 in case one of these criteria is filled with an value. I have tried other things like: =SUM(IF((B:B="ATR10"),0)) But this causes all rows with a value in cell B to be 0. I need it to sum up to 0 in case one of the criteria is filled. Is this even possible? A: If you put 0 in the criteria list as a top level criterion you should be OK. =SUMIFS(A3:A10,D3:D10,{"ATR10*","UTR10","MRR10",0}) Note that you might be better off using =IF(A3:A10="ATR10",0,SUMIFS(A3:A10,D3:D10,{"ATR10*","UTR10","MRR10"})) Viacom, CBS, FOX: No 'Dumbbell Ringer' Talks at Fox Exec Meeting Viacom, CBS and Fox (which has a 22 percent stake in Viacom) did not bring up the possibility of merging the two companies at their annual meeting Tuesday, which was dominated by the operational issues facing the combined company, according to a participant. Chief executives of the three companies have been considering selling CBS or Viacom and adding a smaller company as a partner. Fox's interest in CBS Corp. would be equal to Viacom's 22 percent stake in CBS. That stake was valued at $11 billion in the last CBS-Viacom deal, and the premium for Fox's 8 percent stake would be the same amount. Viacom CEO Philippe Dauman didn't mention the possibility in his remarks during the meeting, held in New York.Q: How to implement bullet physics in C

How to create a successful event-planning business

The planning of an event can be one of the most frustrating parts. In fact, many people even avoid it. If you're looking to develop an event-planning business, here are the things you need to consider. "At the end of the day, event planning is not so much about putting on the event as it is about making sure the other people involved in the event are having a good time." The planning of an event is one of the most challenging and frustrating jobs that people do. There are many options, from teaming up with friends to hire a professional agency. But how do you know which one is the best choice for you? To get started, you need to consider certain factors to make your event planning a success. What is event planning? Event planning is the process of managing an event. In simpler terms, it's when you put together a set of events in order to tell a story to the people who attend them. The term "event planning" was first introduced in the early 20th century to describe the process of coordinating events. This included everything from planning the venue to catering and everything in between. It didn't include anything else. But, the term eventually became more specific to people who coordinate an event, including toasting, entertaining, and setting up decorations. However, the planning of an event can be one of the most frustrating parts. In fact, many people even avoid it. It can be nerve-racking to know that people will be at your event. It means that you have to get dressed in a special outfit, get your hair done, and make sure that you do the little things that people like. If you're looking to develop an event-planning business, here are the things you need to consider.
