As many other mobile social games that use the Facebook platform, Live City GamesSummary: The largest and most complete collection of recently published trends and opinions on the auto insurance industry. Auto Insurance Trends and Quotes for July 2011 Categories: Whether it's the national deficit or the economy, most Americans' financial situation has taken a hit. However, for the auto insurance industry, the good times are rolling. There is some concern that these positive trends could be curtailed by the national deficit, especially if the political scene continues to deteriorate. All these factors, along with the fact that interest rates are low, is why auto insurance premiums are lower than they have been since 1996. State-by-state, some states have seen premium increases, but nationally, the trend has been downward. In addition to the good news for consumers, it's important for insurance providers to provide more than the bare minimum in order to satisfy customers. While this is true, it's not the whole story. Our desire is to provide our customers with maximum value in the insurance they purchase. This requires a solid, well-communicated service and ongoing access to information to help them save even more on their
