I'm quite surprised (but pleased) to see some discussion of login functionality on HN. I'm a somewhat active member of HN, but I don't consistently scroll down to the point where I see the login. I know I've learned from the logo being at the top, since I go straight to that first when I login. However, some time ago I also checked the post submissions when I signed in, and a good portion of the time I was at the top! My bottom and top frames are good, but I can't see the login for a good portion of the time I check HN. I assume it makes sense for the login to be at the top. This change would be made relatively painless, since the size of the menu would stay constant. I just need to be able to find it when I'm at the top of HN. No major functional issues that I know of. Thanks for your feedback. ===== there if your account is logged in, i don't see the login at the top either

Modulatory effects of abscisic acid on the phosphorylation and activity of sucrose synthase in suspension-cultured tobacco cells. Abscisic acid (ABA) enhanced the phosphorylation of sucrose synthase (SS) in Tobacco cell suspension. The increase in phosphorylation was found to be linear with the ABA concentration over the range from 0.01 to 1 mM. Significant stimulation of in vitro phosphorylation of cell-free extracts was observed with 0.05 mM ABA. The effect was observed as early as 30 min after treatment and gradually disappeared at 120 min. Enzyme activity was not stimulated by 0.05 mM ABA for at least 1 h of incubation time. However, ABA repressed the SS activity in intact cells. Treatment with 0.1 mM ABA for 24 h decreased SS activity by 50%. The ABA effect on SS was dependent on
